

Jennifer Steen Kilpatrick graduated from the University of North Alabama with a degree in Theatre and Radio/Television/Film. She performed in numerous productions while she was there including "Volpone," "Uncle Vanya," "All Over Town," "Measure for Measure," and "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew."

After spending several years working in television news, Jennifer has been active in Shoals area theatre appearing in shows such as "Flowers for Algernon," "Children," "Murder at the Howard Johnson's," and "All I Really Need To Know I Learned In Kindergarten." She also directs Time-Out for Theatre's annual production of "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever." She serves on the Zodiac Theatre's Board of Directors. Jennifer also toured with the Steve Trash Illusion Show and appeared in the children's film "Trash T.V." Jennifer lives in Florence with her husband, Kevin, and daughter, Kyndal.